*The Dobson Family
December 2018*

Dear Fellow Cattle Producers and Friends,

As we sit here to write the welcome for the sale its September 12. We are looking forward to summer's end and cooler drier days, we are preparing for picture day next week.

We have dug deep into the herd to offer what we believe to be some of the best Gelbvieh genetics a person can find nationwide. Over the years, we've only offered a handful of females privately while we built the herd . We feel its time to offer more as our cowherd has reached a manageable size at this point.

We have maintained an extensive A.I. and E.T. program for years and mate these females up on a individual basis to ensure maximum quality in the end product. We focus on everything that makes a good cow structure, udder, feet and legs, growth, efficiency and the ability to breed back quickly.

Our dad, Mitch, was a big stickler on all these qualities and insisted on hard core culling policies still used on the ranch today. He always said, "It doesn't take a damn bit more to feed a good one as it does to feed a sorry one."

Phenotype is a big deal here as well. We strive to breed cattle that can be appropriated by anyone regardless of breed preference or background. The trick is breeding down then breeding back up, while keeping everything good about the Gelbvieh cow EPDs in this program are an important tool in the overall equation, but never relied on in a mating decision if it could jeopardize any of the traits listed above.

We offer Balancer, Gelbvieh and Angus bulls private treaty at the ranch throughout the year and place roughly 125 bulls yearly. These bulls are developed slowly on a low-energy roughage/feed mix and are out on grass throughout the process to ensure they are ready to work and never over-finished. There will be several of our longtime bull customers at the sale in November, please seek them out and ask them about their experience of success with Dobson Ranch bulls. Call anytime for your herdsire needs.

This sale has really come together nicely, we were able to assemble an outstanding team from the sale manager, auctioneer and the consultants, to the ringmen and everyone associated with the sale from animal care to pictures, video, marketing ads and everything elsein-between. People, you know who you are, and we would like to thank you for all your hard work and dedication!

We'll see you November 9th... be there!

MEET THE DOBSON FAMILY

AMERICAN GELBVIEH ASSOCIATION'S FIRST-EVER REGISTRAR

BY MEGAN SILVEIRA FOR BEST OF THE WEST

In 1972, the Dobson Ranch hosted the first-ever production sale featuring the Gelbvieh breed in North America.

The Dobson family invites you to join them for their Building Your Future with the Foundation Female Sale scheduled for Nov. 9, at the H2 Facility in Perkins, Okla.

This sale marks the first time females from the operation will be offered at auction in 47 years.

"My family and I are really excited about our decision to share our genetics in our upcoming female sale," said Jim Dobson, co-owner of Dobson Ranch, Kaw City, Okla.

Over 500 cow-calf pairs and 125 bulls of both Gelbvieh and Balancer® cattle can be found on the Dobson Ranch today.

The family still runs a few Angus, but added Gelbvieh and Balancer® cattle to the mix in the early 1970s – paving the way for the Gelbvieh breed in the U.S. ever since.

The Dobsons were the first members of the breed association, and Jim Dobson was the first junior member. Dobson and his brother, John, are proud to be continuing the family tradition raising Gelbvieh and Balancer® cattle.

"We have maintained an extensive artificial insemination and embryo transfer program for years. We mate our cattle on an individual basis to ensure maximum quality in the end production," Dobson said. "We focus on everything that makes a great cow – structure, udder quality, feet and legs, growth, efficiency and the ability to be bred back," he adds.

It was a fellow seedstock producer who convinced Dobson to host the sale. Louann Fraser visited the Dobson Ranch and left as the the sale manager. Dobson said Fraser has been a key component to this project and is grateful for her help.

He sees the production sale as a chance to share genetics with new breeders, as well as a customer appreciation event for his current bull buyers. Dobson has quite the lineup for the sale, choosing to make it a weekend event rather than just an auction.

Cattle will be available to preview all day Fri. Nov. 8, and Sat., Nov. 9, at the H2 Sale Facility in Perkins, Okla. The sale begins at 7 p.m. For the full event schedule, see page 3.

With the goal of continuing to produce high quality cattle for many years to come, Dobson plans on making the production sale an annual event. He said he has high hopes of introducing more cattlemen and cattlemen to the breed that he and his family are proud to be a part of.

"We're here in the Gelbvieh breed to stay," Dobson said. "I was born into it, and have no plans of leaving."

The Dobson Ranch production sale is history-in-the-making for the breed.

"We are focusing on cattle producers who aren't familiar with Gelbvieh cattle, so we can welcome them to the breed," Dobson said. "I want these cattle to be appreciated in the mainstream. I'm excited to showcase our genetics in order to find producers who want to gain an appreciation of the Dobson ranch cow," he adds.

For those that can't make it to Oklahoma for the sale, online bidding will be available sale day with a live broadcast on www.FrontierLiveSale.com.

While the Nov. 9 sale will focus on females, the Dobsons have service-aged Gelbvieh and Balancer® bulls for sale at the ranch private treaty, as well as on test at Midland Bull Test in Columbus, Mont.
